Antimicrobial Resistance in a Human-Shaped World: Emerging Risks at the Human–Animal–Environment Interface

Introduction by:

Prof. Anna Odone

*Coordinator of the National PhD in One health approaches to infectious diseases and life science research
University of Pavia*

Speaker: Dr. Carmen Losasso

Carmen Losasso is a senior biologist at the SCS3 – Ecosystems Unit of the Istituto Zooprofilattico Sperimentale delle Venezie (IZSve). She graduated in Biological Sciences from Sapienza University of Rome and earned a PhD in Biochemistry from the Università Cattolica del Sacro Cuore in Rome. Her research focuses on bacterial metataxonomics and metagenomics, molecular and genomic epidemiology of foodborne pathogenic microorganisms, and the impact of environmental selective pressures and contaminants on complex human, animal, food, and environmental microbial communities.

- The seminar is part of the training activities of the National PhD in “One health approaches to infectious diseases and life science research” for the module CONTEXT curriculum.
- Participation is free of charge and worth 0.5 CFU. To participate, register at the following link (<https://forms.gle/8YGXexyQcg1fqoXo9>) before November 5, 2026
